By the far corners the still threads of the fashion industry covet the world more than they ever did and control not only the way people dress but also the way in which they think, behave, and move. In the 1960s, when the world was a small place, it was a matter of the world at large or a nation, and this is how we thought. Now, fashion is global and the world is not so small. It is not so much about the way they think, or how they move, but about the way they live. It is the essence of their individuality and beliefs, and designers are well aware of the power they carry. Fashion is not just a means of expressing your style, it is a way of life. It is a reflection of the world we live in, and it is a reflection of the world we want to see.

In the 21st century the subtle changes in the fashion industry designate thresholds more than just eye-catching elements, but they are the way people dress but also trends in home ware design, beauty fashion and people's overall attitudes. In the 21st century people do not only wear jeans and t-shirts, it is about the whole attitude of a generation, and this is even more prominent today. Fashion is bold and daring, and this reflects a generation that is not afraid to do what they think, or wear what they want. Fashion is not just a means of clothing your body, it is the image of your personality and beliefs, and designers are well aware of the power they hold. Embroidery, printing and coloring for the clothing design are more subtle and direct than any other revelation in the world.
